SOME FACTS OF THE MEXICAN CUISINE

Mexican cuisine is known for its intense and varied flavors, colorful decoration, and variety of spices.

Most of today's Mexican food is based on pre-hispanic traditions, including the Aztecs and Maya, combined with culinary trends introduced by Spanish colonists. The basic diet of the Aztecs and Maya, was corn – holy food. Corn still is a basic food product.

The tortilla, the famous Mexican bread, is made with either corn or wheat. It is a flat bread, stuffed with a variety of different fillings, and served as a roll or wrap.

Mexican food varies by region, because of local climate and geography and ethnic differences. The north of Mexico is known for its beef production and meat dishes. Southeastern Mexico, on the other hand, is known for its spicy vegetable and chicken-based dishes. Seafood is commonly prepared in the state of Veracruz.

HOT STUFF:

We must hereby straighten a small prejudice:

Mexican food is not necessarily spicy! On our menu you can tell from our simple signs which dishes are spicy and which ones aren't. If you happen to be a lover of the very spicy cuisine just tell us - we'll do our best...!

ENJOY SAFELY!

We want you to enjoy our meals without having to worry about your health. Therefore we use fresh ingredients, blend our salsas every day and smash avocados daily for guacamole. Our beef comes from Argentina and our lamb from New Zealand where animals can be kept outdoors and live on lush fodder grass.

Our guests have known for a long time that you can taste the quality. It's worth it!

¡Que aproveche! – Bon appetite!

MEXICO – LAND OF EXTREMES!

A small lesson in geography? Mexico lies in the southern part of North America and covers almost two million square kilometres. The country is bordered by the Pacific and the Atlantic Ocean and has an enormous range of natural environments with deserts and tropical rain forests. Spanish architecture alongside ruinous aztec temples, prehistoric Native American villages next to melting pot metropolises. While the official language is Spanish there are also over 50 Native American languages and traditional dialects.

Mexico City is a mixture of fascinating metropolis and slums. With 20 million inhabitants Mexico City is one of the world's biggest cities, full of temperament, life and a rich cultural heritage.
